

Work Rights

Minimum Wage

- There are laws to make sure that all workers are paid a minimum wage or higher. Different kinds of jobs have different pay rates.

Work Condition

- There are laws about working conditions Eg. paid annual leave, sick leave, hours of work
- There are laws for employers to provide a safe workplace and respect workers' rights. The law says that both employers and employees are responsible for safety.
- For example, employers have responsibility to train you to operate tools safely. You have responsibility to follow safe practices.
- Ask if you do not understand signs at work. It is important so that you don't get hurt.

Types of Employment

It is important to know the type of employment because pay rates, leave and other entitlements are different.

1. Full-time

- A full-time employee works on average, around 38 hours each week.
- The actual hours of work for an employee in a particular job or industry are agreed between the employer and the employee and/or set by an award or registered agreement.

2. Part-time

- A part-time employee:
 - works, on average, less than 38 hours per week
 - usually works regular hours each week
 - is entitled to the same benefits as a full-time employee, but on a pro rata basis
 - is a permanent employee or on a fixed-term contract.

3. Casual

- A casual employee:

- has no guaranteed hours of work
- usually works irregular hours
- does not get paid sick or annual leave
- can have his/her employment terminated without notice, unless notice is required by a registered agreement, award or employment contract.
