Government or Public Schools

- Children will usually go to the government school closest to where they live.
- Free education from Prep to Year 12 – parents pay for items such as books, uniform and extra-curricular or excursions activities.
- These schools can be:
  - A primary school - Prep to Year 6, generally for children between 5 and 11 years old
  - A Junior secondary school - Years 7 to 10.
  - A Senior Secondary school – Years 11 and 12 to prepare for tertiary study.
  - A P-12 school - combines primary and secondary at the same location.
  - A school that specialises in teaching children with a disability or additional needs.

Non-government Schools

- Sometimes called private schools, independent schools or Catholic schools.
- Not-government funded - not part of the government system and have their own enrolment process and costs.

Language Schools

- English language school - teach students who are learning English as an additional language.
- Community language schools - teach students' heritage languages outside normal school hours. Programs are available to students from Prep to Year 12, depending on the language.
- All Tasmanian Government Schools offer English as an Additional Language (EAL) tuition on-campus. The programs delivered in each school will vary, however all will teach you a range of important skills for improving your English Language level. You will receive English language tuition to suit your level of ability.

Selective Entry High Schools

There are no fully selective schools in Tasmania. A number of schools offer specialised programs for gifted students, with admission based on academic performance.

Distance Education

- Tasmanian eSchool was implemented in 2010, replacing Distance Education Tasmania and the Open Learning Network. Tasmanian eSchool takes the Blended Learning approach, offering a full education, online K–10 program with campuses in Rocherlea and Derwent Park. Teachers run online lessons and may send materials through the mail.
- More information about eLearning Programs is available by emailing: elearning@education.tas.gov.au

Home Schooling

- Where parents take on responsibility for teaching their child. It's an alternative to children attending a school.
- Find out the requirements for home schooling from the Office of the Education Registrar Tasmanian Government.

Discussion:

1. You recently migrated to Australia with your family. You would like to enrol your children to school, however you feel that they need to improve their English a bit more before that. What type of school is the most suitable for your children at this stage?
2. There is a public school just down the road where you live. You are also thinking that you would like your children to have a strong faith foundation and you are willing to invest in your child's education. Which school would be the best option?
