

Learning that sparks
empathy, action and hope

Salvos
Schools

We empower school communities to understand social injustice, take compassionate action and engage with the mission of The Salvation Army through learning, partnership and practical experiences.

Build empathy

Through interactive social justice workshops and real-world learning experiences, students will explore social issues, increase their awareness of support services, and be equipped to respond to hardship with understanding and compassion.

Empower action

Through meaningful service-learning experiences and student-led initiatives that turn compassion into action and learning into lasting impact.

Create impact

Through volunteering, community engagement and advocacy opportunities that make positive social change.

Strengthen learning

Through curriculum-aligned resources and ready-to-use learning tools that bring social justice education to life.
